You May Live 140 Years Love, Laughter, Tears Many Prefer Short Life Women Versus Men

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

The distinguished Dr. Serge Voronoff, who plants certain glands of monkeys in men and women, lending the monkey's energy to his human "cousins" for a while at least, is in London to publish a new book in English.

He finds that English women are far more eager than the women of any other country to try his monkey gland transplantation. Women of other countries, according to Dr. Voronoff, are satisfied as they grow old to have their faces remain young. The beauty parlors, face-lifters and others can attend to that for them.

But, the English woman most actually DO young in body, muscles and energy. She must play golf, traipse miles over the heather in the grouse season, hop around on tennis courts, follow the hounds over fences and ditches on horseback, when she might better be knitting herself a lace cap. The beauty parlor cannot arrange that for her.

Dr. Voronoff, dispenser of monkey glands, does not rely on his own treatment in the family circle. His own wife, beautiful young woman of Vienna, is only 24.

The number of men that apply for renewed youth, via the monkey route, are ten times as numerous as the women, of any nationality, which does not surprise you; it proves again that men, on the average, are ten times as foolish as women.

Dr. Voronoff says his customers include "prominent men who have grown old in the service of the state." They go to Dr. Voronoff "because, while they still have the brain of their earlier years, they have not the vitality to keep on at their work."

History shows that men of real mental power, like Bismarck, Gladstone, Edison and many others, get along fairly well in old age without the help of any monkey.

In the opinion of Dr. Voronoff, who is a learned man apart from his monkey gland specialty, the average human being should live at least 140 years.

Animals live, on the average, he says, seven times as long as it takes them to develop fully. The human being is fully developed at about 20—living in the open, in natural surroundings, with only the basic emotions of love, laughter and tears, he should live for seven times 20 years which should be 140. Says Dr. Voronoff.

"Women are nearer this animal state than men."

He adds:

"It is possible for a woman, who spends a painless half an hour in having the glands of a

CITY TO ASK MILLION MORE IN NEW SUITS

Spurred on by the success of the city's suit against former Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan, Mayor Mansfield today announced he would instigate two more suits, involving more than a million dollars.

One, he said, would be against persons profiting illegally in the land takings for the entrances and exits for the Sumner tunnel to East Boston. This would be for "more than $1,000,000."

The other action, said the mayor, would be to recover $50,000 which the city paid for a Back Bay company for alleged damages from a burst city water pipe.

FORECAST BY AMERICAN

The mayor thus confirmed a prediction made by the Boston Evening American last December. Then it was forecast that the $250,000 suit against former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan was only a forerunner of actions even more drastic.

Mayor Mansfield opened his latest war against Governor Curley by charging that the governor was in contempt of court because of his remarks on the finding of Judge Edward F. Hanify in the city's suit against Dolan.

He referred to the assessment against Dolan of $241,163.90, and Governor Curley's statement that it was "perfectly timed, with the primaries next Tuesday."

CURLEY-MANSFIELD TILT

Mayor Mansfield called this "as flagrant a defiance of court principle as I have ever known."

And the governor retorted that

LANDON ADDS 3 N. E. STOPS TO ITINERARY

Besieged by appeals for more personal appearances in his swing through New England over the week-end, Governor Alfred M. Landon today added three more Massachusetts stops to his itinerary.

Springfield, Pittsfield and Sterling Junction will see and hear the Republican candidate for the presidency on his triumphal tour, as well as the ten other communities scheduled in his original plan.

It is possible that the list may be further enlarged because of the barrage of pleas being received in Topeka today. Governor Landon leaves the Kansas capital at 10:10 o'clock tonight.

CONFERS WITH FINCHOT

Stamford, Bridgeport, New Haven and New London will greet the "Coolidge of the West" on Saturday forenoon.

Worcester, Lowell and Lawrence will see and hear him during the afternoon, with Dover, N. H., and Kennebunk, Me., next scheduled before the climaxing address in the auditorium at Portland.

The Springfield and Pittsfield appearances will be on Monday.

Governor Landon was in conference with former Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania most of the day, prior to his departure for the East. It was understood that they were discussing further ex-

Dick Grant Given 2 Black Eyes At Bachelor Dinner

Climaxing a bachelor dinner to John T. O'Dea, Jr., son of the police traffic captain, Dick Grant, state public utilities commissioner, former radio announcer and former secretary to Governor Curley, received two black eyes, according to reports at the State House today.

The reports declared that the black eyes were administered by one of Grant's own close associates, a fast two-punch man who let both go and floored the fiery Grant, who has borne a reputation as a fast puncher himself when occasion warranted.

Approximately 200 guests were present at the banquet in the Hotel Lenox when trouble started in the second floor banquet hall.

U.S. Probes Romance Crash

Under way but a few minutes this afternoon, the hearing before federal steamboat inspectors on the collision between S. S. New York and S. S. Romance was abruptly halted and postponed upon receipt of a telegram from Washington.

Probe of the crash by investigators continues, however.

The wire was from Joseph B. Weaver, Washington, director of the bureau of navigation and steamboat inspection of the Department of Commerce, requesting postponement until 10 o'clock Monday, that two Washington inspectors might confer with the local officers, Captains Charles M. Lyons and Hugh McGlade.

The Boston Evening American learned at the same time that formal complaints concerning the operation of S. S. Romance had been forwarded to Washington several weeks ago.

The first witness, Captain Delbert C. Wickens of the Romance, had just taken the witness stand and was testifying to his qualifications when the interruption and postponement occured.

Captain Roland M. Litchfield of the New York was on hand, prepared to take the stand.

Although no lives were definitely known to have been lost in the fog collision shortly after 7 o'clock last night, the crash falls into the category of "a major marine casualty without loss of life," federal officials said, and as such is open to official inquiry.

Captain Lyons, who presides at the hearings, went to East Boston and inspected the damage to the New York craft at the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation drydock.

It was discovered that the collision, in which the bow of the New York had sliced a number of feet into the port side of the Romance, had bent the New York's stem almost double to a point below the waterline.

Captain Hulett C. Shepherd of the bureau's survey board is also in Boston making a survey.

COAST GUARD HUNTS SHIP CRASH VICTIMS

(Other Ship News, Pictures, on Pages 3 and 4)

Coast guard vessels poked through the fogged swell off Graves Light today in search of bodies from the wreck of the excursion steamer Romance, sunk in collision with S. S. New York last night.

Doubt that the 265 men, women and children rescued by the New York represented the entire personnel of the Boston-Provincetown ship was expressed by coast guard officials.

"We are not taking anybody's word for it," the Coast Guard announced.

At least one passenger on the Romance was reported missing.

He was John Miller, Vancouver, B. C., who made the Provincetown trip yesterday, according to relatives he was visiting here, and has not since been seen.

A report that five or six others were unaccounted for could not be verified.

No information was made available to newspapers at the office of the Bay State Steamship Company, owners of the Romance, and reporters making inquiry there were ordered out.

At the office of the Eastern Steamship Lines, owners of the Boston-New York liner, while every courtesy was shown press representatives seeking an accurate check, it was pointed out that the Eastern had no record of the Romance's personnel and could only take the word of the excursion steamer's officers that all had been saved.

FOG HAMPERS SEARCH

So terrific was the impact as the New York drove her bow into Romance's side, "folding her up like a cracker box," in the description of one survivor, that it was feared some may have been injured and not found in the 18 minutes that elapsed between the collision and the plunge of the excursion boat.

Only one or two of the eight survivors on the injured list were seriously hurt.

Continued fog, the primary cause of the collision, hampered search-efs on the scene today.

LANDON ADDS TWO N. E. CITIES TO TOUR ITINERARY

STATE G. O. P. LAUNCHES FUNDS 'CRUSADE'; 30,000 WORKERS TO JOIN IN DRIVE

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

"Spearhead of a crusade" to halt the further decline of America into "some form of dictatorship-fascism-socialism or communism" for which it seems destined under the Roosevelt administration, one of the greatest campaigns for funds ever attempted by the Republican party in this state is being launched by the G. O. P. finance committee of which Wil W. Farley, well known Boston attorney, is general chairman.

In a statement telling of the campaign fund plan, Chairman Farley warned that the country faces the greatest crisis since the Civil war and that upon the outcome rests whether the United States continues to exist under its democratic form or be moulded after "some new pattern, such as has developed in Europe."

Unpaid workers—30,000 of them—will take the field in about 10 days soliciting contributions not only from every enrolled Republican in the state but from those opposed to the New Deal and the present state government.

When the word "go" is given, the 30,000 solicitors will start a systematic canvass all over the state, each canvasser working from a list of Republican voters.

Engraved certificates, with the donor's name written in, and a receipt for his contribution, will be offered to each person contributing. The certificates will bear portraits of Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential candidate, and of John W. Haigis, Republican candidate for governor.

LIKE CHEST

The certificates will certify that the contributor "has enrolled with the forces fighting to defeat political dictatorship and the New Deal by electing to office honorable men pledged to protect our liberties and preserve our institutions."

Charles Francis Adams, former secretary of the navy, is treasurer of the finance committee. Fred A. Dakin is vice chairman and W. J. O'Donnell is secretary. Mrs. Addison B. Green of Holyoke heads the women's division. Mrs. Green is Republican national committeewoman.

Announcing the plan General Chairman Farley said:

"It affords the ordinary citizen the only outlet to register his protest against the existing order of things, prior to the election. It has been devised partly for that purpose and partly because we need every possible cent we can get. The collection of campaign funds in the past has been too closely limited. Instead of a few thousand contributors, who supplied the money for former campaigns we want at least 200,000 in Massachusetts this year.

"With four more years of Roosevelt the United States as we know it will cease to exist. We will be a nation modeled after some new pattern such as has developed in Europe.

"No element among our people is more concerned with this than the average citizen.

MONEY TALKS"

"We need money in this crisis as never before. We cannot hope to match the $4,800,000,000 indirectly spent by the Administration to control votes, to say nothing of the direct millions, but we must have enough, operating through every legitimate channel of publicity, to get our message before the people.

Constitution Exercises Planned

One week from today National Constitution Day will be observed by Boston's citizenry with appropriate exercises being held in Faneuil Hall, Cradle of American Liberty.

Prominent speakers of national prominence, including Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Governor Joseph B. Ely, will address the gathering.

In addition to the Faneuil Hall program, proclamations calling upon the citizens to observe the 149th birthday of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States on September 17th, will be issued by mayors and town officials in every community in Massachusetts.

Among those who are sponsoring this movement, which is entirely non-partisan, to familiarize the people with the Constitution are Frederic W. Cook, secretary of state, former Governor Joseph B.

MRS. JAMES GRAY

Ely, Archibald A. Giroux, of Lexington, and Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, prominent Back Bay society matron and patriotic leader.

Eighty-three patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations have thrown full support behind the movement. These include such groups as the American Bar Association, the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis International, Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, American War Mothers of Massachusetts and the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

In a call to the people of Massachusetts to join whole-heartedly in the anniversary celebration, Giroux, chairman of the National Constitution Day Committee, today issued the following statement:

"We know of nothing more important in the present state of affairs than to remind the citizens of Massachusetts of the importance and understanding of the Constitution.

"Today we should realize the importance of this immortal document, which the greatest of men have agreed is the greatest plan for the advancement of the human welfare and happiness which has ever been penned by the hands of men, and we must do our part in maintaining this priceless heritage for future generations."

TRIP DELIGHTS ROOSEVELT

Asheville, N. C., Sept. 10 (AP)—Thrilled by the natural wonders of the Great Smoky Mountain National Park, President Roosevelt arose early today to complete writing the address for a Southern state rally in Charlotte.

A brief informal address at McCormick Field here was the only engagement arranged for the Chief Executive before he started the approximately three-hour motor drive to Charlotte.

The President timed his departure so as to arrive in Charlotte shortly before 7 p. m. (E.D.T.) when he was scheduled to take the platform at the new WPA-built municipal stadium and talk to governors, senators and other citizens of half a dozen Southern commonwealths.

Arriving at his mountain resort hotel here just before dark, the President, through Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary, expressed delight at his 150-mile auto tour of the smokies of Tennessee and North Carolina.

The trip, starting at Knoxville, Tenn., required nearly nine hours. Crowds turned out in all the towns along the route and applauded as the chief executive waved his straw hat.

"For 30 years," he commented afterward, "I have wanted to come here.

"Not only am I not disappointed, but I am delighted and thrilled with it. It was a grand trip."

25,000 TO HEAR LANDON TALK IN PORTLAND

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Augusta, Me., Sept. 10—Governor Alfred M. Landon at Portland on Saturday night will address probably the greatest audience to set foot in the history of Maine's turbulent politics.

Arrangements were being rushed today for accommodation of a crowd estimated between 25,000 and 50,000—larger by far than the entire population of Portland was when the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt when he was the idol of the state.

Governor Landon will speak in the splendid Portland auditorium, capable of seating about 5000 people. The remainder of the great audience will flow into the adjacent athletic field where the amplification of his speech is being arranged.

TO BROADCAST SPEECH

Special trains and motor cavalcades will bring people to the scene from every section of New England. Arrangements have been made for the installation for radio reception of his speech at more than 250 Republican rallies scheduled for every section of the state as the climax of the barometer campaign.

Throughout the state there will be demonstrations of regard for the Kansas governor, whose plain and sturdy virtues have commended him to the plain people of Maine. He has been exceedingly popular throughout New England. He is looked upon as the "Coolidge of the West." The people here understand and appreciate his demands for "commonsense" in government.

If there was the slightest doubt of the outcome of the primaries elections Monday, the decision of Governor Landon to make his "surprise" visit to Maine has completely erased it. He will command the attention of the voters on Saturday and Sunday and the Ivy Leaguer Dealers will be unable to provide any offsetting campaign feature.

DEAL ATTACKS

His coming on Saturday night will maintain an historic event. It has been the custom of the Maine Republicans to conclude their campaigns with a great mass meeting in Portland. Some of America's foremost orators in political life have occupied the climaxing role which the Kansas governor will fill here Saturday night.

New Dealers released today their first barrage of attack on the governor's visit, figured by the announcement of his decision to enter Maine. They today employed their publicity artists in a desperate attempt to convert to a belief the Republicans felt their campaign was hopeless and Governor Landon was brought here to save them.

Such is not the case. The governor was not urged by the Maine Republicans to come. They are glad indeed he is coming, but they believed the state would go overwhelmingly Republican this year because of the intense hostility among the people to the New Deal.

POLLS CONFIRM BELIEF

Their belief is confirmed by every poll that has been taken in the state, by defections among the Democrats who are antagonistic to the New Deal and by the splendid attendance at their rallies. The polls that Landon would beat Roosevelt by 90,000 and that Senator Wallace H. White, Jr., and Secretary of State Lewis O. Barrows, the Republican candidate for governor, would be handsomely elected. The forecasts for victory run all down the line, including the three Republican candidates for Congress.

Governor Landon, informed of these results, decided to come into the state for national rather than local reasons.

The governor has a fundamental knowledge of politics. He thinks in the simple political terms of Calvin Coolidge. He believes that if a smashing victory is won in Maine it will give encouragement to people throughout the country who earnestly hope the New Deal will be repudiated but who have entertained some doubt of the outcome. By his presence here on the eve of election he will focus the attention of the country on the Maine Republican victory.

SPUR TO CAMPAIGN FUNDS

This result will convince the country the entire New Deal is against the New Deal. It will enable the Republican campaign to be concentrated in the future in the populous and pivotal states of the West. It will encourage the contribution of campaign funds which are always necessary in an election of nation-wide magnitude.

These were the causes of Governor Landon's statement that he is coming to Maine to participate in the first fighting repudiation of the New Deal.

largement of the New England program.

As plans stand now, Governor Landon, leaving Kansas tonight, will be in Chicago tomorrow morning, and, after lunching with George P. Harding, national committeeman for Illinois, will leave there on a special train at 2 p. m.

THEN INTO N. E.

Swinging through Indiana, he will make platform appearances in Gary at 2:33, in Valparaiso at 2:50, in Plymouth at 3:31 and in Fort Wayne at 4:20 p. m.

New England Republican leaders and newspapermen will board the special at Manhattan Junction, N. J., at 8:15 a. m. (daylight time) Saturday.

The London special will be transferred to the New Haven Railroad at Sunnyside, N. Y., and although it must pass through New York City, there is as yet nothing in the plans calling for an appearance there.

It is more probable that after spending Sunday in Portland with Senator Frank Hale, the Kansas Governor will add to his appearances en route home Monday. It was said he would talk at Syracuse N. Y., Rochester, N. Y., as well as in Springfield and Pittsfield.

ENTHUSES MAINE

Governor Landon will speak at Portland about 10:30 p. m. E. D. T., in the Municipal stadium.

While in Portland he will confer with all of the Republican state leaders. Reports received by the Governor from Maine today were that the state is on fire with enthusiasm over his impending visit.

Reaching Chicago early Tuesday the nominee will start immediately over the Santa Fe railroad for a swing through Illinois to Kansas City, Mo., and thence to Topeka, Kansas, where he will be about midnight Tuesday.

When Governor Landon made his dramatic announcement Tuesday night that he would speak in Portland Saturday night "to help rededicate the state to good government," his intention was to travel over regular railroad trains to New York city and use a special train from there for rear-platform appearances in New England.

But his announcement unloosed a rear of appeals from cities all the way to and from New York from citizens anxious to see him and hear him speak. With enthusiasm running high in the Republican party, pleas were made that he pause en route to meet party leaders and appear before throngs of people. The plan accordingly was broadened.

HIS MAINE APPEAL

The line of attack Governor Landon will take on this campaign tour was not revealed by him, but associates here said they expected he would deliver at Portland a ringing appeal to the people of that state to elect Republican candidates to Congress and a Republican governor in Monday's election there.

With newspaper polls and private reports showing Maine overwhelmingly for Landon's election, his supporters concluded that if the people translate that sentiment into votes for Republican candidates for governor and governor-to back him up and thus register their disapproval of the Roosevelt "New Deal"—the victory for the G. O. P. will be overwhelming.

Recalling the old saying, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation," Landon supporters believed a smashing victory there would have a rare tremendous psychological effect throughout the country.

AIDS EASTERN DRIVE

While New England was counted upon to go Republican in the 260-vote presidential election, the impending campaign tour of Governor Landon was expected to have beneficial effects throughout the East as well as in Western territory he will cover.

In his Portland speech the governor was expected to hammer on several phases of the "New Deal," which he contends have retarded business recovery and have been a departure from "the American way of doing things." That he will discuss the foreign trade agreements made by the President, slashes in tariff rates which have let in cheap foreign goods in competition with American labor and farmers, was believed certain.

Returning to Topeka from the East, he will be there only a few days before making a campaign tour through Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota and perhaps Illinois and Missouri, with a major speech on the farm problem at Des Moines. He will start on that tour about September 18.

His public appearance in New York city for a speech in Madison Square Garden there apparently was being held up until about October 28 during his last invasion of the East. On that final swing he will speak in other Eastern cities.

monkey transferred to her, to again 15 years of her life."

Many men and even more women would not be satisfied with a life made up of "love, laughter and tears," for instance, Madame Curie, Julia Ward Howe and a great many others.

It will be interesting to see how long Dr. Serge Voronoff will live, he is now sixty-eight and has probably not resorted to monkey assistance as yet.

Sometimes those with the best theories on dying long die rather early, for instance, Dr. Coue, the "better-and-better-in-every-way" man, died young, and so did the learned American who told you to chew your food forty or fifty times for each mouthful and live on indefinitely.

Many would prefer a short life with a great deal of excitement entirely apart from "love, laughter and tears," packed into it, to the 500 years of a Galapagos turtle. How much would many men not give for the last 15 years of Mussolini's life?

A gaunt many able men, at this moment by the way, have to think more about the income tax than they do about "love, laughter and tears," and all the obliging monkeys in Africa and South America.

In ancient days of woman suffrage discussion, some gentlemen, with collars two sizes larger than their hats, would say:

"Women should not vote until they can fight as well as men do," as though fighting had anything to do with voting.

The modern criminal, however, discovers that women, as fighters, are sometimes more dangerous than men. One lady drove away a bandit with a croquet mallet, and when two bandits tried to hold up a woman owner of a confectionery store, she threw a can of black pepper in their faces, and they left.

2,250,000 MAY CAST BALLOTS IN ELECTION

Approximately 2,250,000 ballots will be distributed to the various polling places throughout the state within the next few days by Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook for the primary elections next Tuesday.

The number of ballots being printed has been increased by 160,000 to take care of new registrations, which in many cities and towns established all high records this year.

VITAL ELECTION INTEREST

While it is figured that the increase in registrations has been largely about mainly because of the interest in the November 3 presidential election, Secretary of State Cook is taking no chances and is providing a ballot for each enrolled voter of both parties plus a generous allowance for emergencies.

In the primary four years ago only 1,625,208 Democrats voted for governor. At the time Governor Ely was unopposed for renomination, but a contest was between the late William H. Youngman, Frank A. Goodwin, E. Mark Sullivan and Wilfred J. Foley, however, took 417,508 Republicans to the polls.

Two years ago, the primary battle for governor between James M. Curley and General Charles H. Cole saw more than 400,000 Democrats voting.

CURLEY-GREENWOOD TEST

There are numerous spirited contests in both parties this year, and while the candidates for governor are unopposed, the primary vote is expected to be heavy.

A highlight in the Democratic primary will be the test of strength between Governor Curley and Mayor Henry F. Greenwood of Fitchburg for the nomination for United States senator.

October 29 during his last invasion of the East. On that final swing he will speak in other Eastern cities.

BARROWS HITS DEAL PLEDGES

Madison, Me., Sept. 10—Criticism of New Deal campaign activities of funds for Maine was voiced here by Lewis O. Barrows, Republican gubernatorial nominee, who said:

"Again we have been advised that the federal government had allocated a million dollars for her to be used on the highways of this state.

"That naturally would be welcomed by all of the municipalities of Maine—and yet, strangely enough, up to and this very day, neither the WPA in Portland nor the highway department of this state have been given any information in this respect and no allocations have, of course, been made.

GRIM RECORDS OF COLLISION ON FOGGY SEA

Brave as of Old

Coast Guardsman Arthur Erickson, center, displays some of the gear of the ill-fated S. S. Romance. The life preservers and other equipment held by Erickson and his friendly aides were brought in at Nahant by the Coast Guard. The Nahant Guards rushed to the scene of the collision, but rescue work was completed rapidly before their arrival.

Nearly unconscious as a result of injuries suffered in the smash near Graves Light, Steward Arthur Lodge of the Romance is half carried into the Haymarket Relief Station by two Boston police officers.

Crumpled and torn, the bow of the S. S. New York shows the force of the terrific impact with the Romance, which sank in Boston Harbor after the crash. Entire crew and passengers on Romance were taken off safely, though only 20 minutes elapsed between crash, and sinking. More than 200 persons were rescued from the sinking ship by means of heroic work.

stream with the wreckage of the Romance, mute testimony to the force of the crash.

Four ample lifeboats of the Romance were found intact, and one of the pilot boats. They contained several life-jackets, two oars, a quantity of food, including remnants of a picnic lunch and a mackinaw coat which had the name Thomas sewed on a inside pocket.

The steam trawler Mayo is bound for the Fish Pier, passing through an area of wreckage, including doors and splintered timbers. Some of this the Mayo brought to the pier.

SUPERSTRUCTURE SHOWING

Entering the waters of the inner harbor, orders from Boston Coast Guard headquarters sent the patrol boat Harriet Lane, which will remain at the spot until the coast guard is satisfied no further bodies or spoil boats are recovered.

Harriet Lane accustomed herself quarters Hour 12 feet of the superstructure of the Romance, and shooting above the waves. The top part of the mast and others from each end stations remained at the surface.

The rescued passengers from the Romance and the passengers aboard the New York, which returned to the Boston piers, were eloquent in their praise of the behavior of the crews of both vessels.

A disaster of major proportions with an appalling loss of life was apparently averted only by the skill and seamanship aboard the New York which, at slow speed to keep her bow from going in the side of the Romance, held the steamship steadily on the collision until the dramatic moment could safely be effected.

IS TAKEN FROM WATER

A number of the rescued men were aboard the New York over ladders and between the decks. One was taken from the sea, and was saved by a sailor aboard by water of the New York.

Eighteen members of the crew, jumped or fell overboard from the Romance and were hauled to safety.

Captain Adelbert O. Wickens of the Romance refused to discuss the collision. He was the last man to go aboard the New York from the excursion boat.

Captain Roland M. Litchfield, master of the New York, gave out the following statement after a conference with Eastern officials.

CAPTAIN'S STORY

"When the S. S. New York left the dock there was good visibility for a considerable distance. Thereafter the weather became quite thick. We proceeded down the harbor very slowly. Shortly after leaving the North Channel we collided with the S. S. Romance.

"I immediately made fast to the other ship with a line and about 700 of her passengers came aboard our ship over the bow. I had also lowered five boats from the New York which took aboard passengers and members of the crew from the Romance.

BELIEVED ALL SAFE

"All the passengers aboard that vessel were safely removed to the New York. I then proceeded with my ship to India Wharf."

Captain Jorgensen added that Captain Wickens had told him he believed all aboard the Romance were safe.

Reporting on his tasks throughout interviews in his room in room the impressed, bringing the Romance to the New York. Mrs. Mary Condon, Kimball road, Watertown, was treated for a cut on her cheek at the Haymarket Relief Hospital.

Some of the rescue intelligence to a screen of smoke and fog rescued company officials.

AWAIT ARRIVAL

Dramatic stories of how more than 200 men were saved in the crash intermingled with those of the anxious throngs and tense headquarters that spanned through the fog-blanketing confusion were those of second passengers of the S. S. Romance and commercial aboard the New York rushed into the arms of waiting friends or relatives. Decks of the New York were lined with passengers as she steamed in and came to anchor in Atlantic avenue. Many of the thousand people awaited the ships arrival.

Police reserves kept traffic moving on the waterfront while ambulances and patrolmen pushed the throngs from pushing to the ship's edge.

Many of the passengers admitted they did not realize the gravity of the collision until the Romance sank to the bottom waters off Graves Light buoy.

Boat after boat proceeding past Boston Light Point Allerton. At 7:05 p. m. passengers living the decks of the Romance saw a huge hole inside and to the fog.

Those that realized there would be a collision despite the fact that the vessels were moving at slow speed, urged men, women and children to the bow. A moment later scores of men, women and children were thrown to the floors and the decks by impact of the collision

3 OF CREW FACE DEATH TO SEEK PASSENGERS

PASSENGER LAUDS SEAMEN FOR BRAVERY IN CRISIS

Fifth last passenger to abandon the S. S. Romance, Talbot McKay, 40 Rockingham road, Mattapan, describes the scene aboard the sinking vessel when three members of the crew escaped in a life raft a few seconds before the ship went down.

Three members of the crew remained on the main deck of the Romance even after the deck was awash and watched for passengers, knee-deep in the foaming waters, McKay said.

In one of the most lucid accounts of the vessel's collision, Mc-Kay told a Boston American reporter:

"We ran into the fog about one fourth of the way out of Provincetown. At dusk the fog got so thick you could see only a few feet in front of us.

SCREAMS AND SHOUTS

"Then came the collision. There were screams and shouts, of course, but the conduct of the crew and the passengers was admirable.

"The Romance was rammed near the fire-hold, at a 90 degree angle. The men in the engine room immediately released all steam in the boilers, adding to the confusion but saving the ship from a possible explosion or fire before it could be abandoned.

"I was the fifth last passenger to leave the Romance, and I had an excellent opportunity to observe the wonderful conduct of its crew.

"Three men stayed on the main deck, to see that everyone had been transferred, until the deck was awash and they were knee deep in water. One of them shouted:

"'We'd better jump for the life rafts.'

"All three of them scrambled atop a raft and floated away from the sinking ship a few seconds before it went down. There was so little suction that, although they were only a few yards from the scene, they were not dragged down. They escaped just as the pilot house disappeared.

SEES SURVIVORS

"An hour later I saw the same three men aboard the New York, and I knew they had survived."

Also engaged in life-preserving as the New York docked H. M. Westergaard, 53 Rockhurst road, Belmont, faced the horror of separation of his family.

Accompanying him on the Romance were his two children, Mary, 4, and Peter, 5. Mary was carried over the ladder extended from the deck of the Romance to the New York. Westergaard was forced to make the perilous journey to the New York in a lifeboat with his son in his arms.

But shortly after he and the boy were taken aboard the New York he found his daughter in the arms and the family was reunited.

Mrs. Dorothy Dahar Simms, 20 Spring street, was separated from her husband, Nathaniel, and her daughter, Mrs. Adelaide Dahar, in the confusion of transferring passengers to the New York.

Still clutching a life preserver in the main saloon of the New York as it docked, Dahar said he was carried across the ladder by a member of the crew. He admitted he was a "little scared," but every thing was all right after he found his mother.

Resting on the bottom of Boston harbor, near Graves Light, was the ill-fated excursion steamer Romance today. The Romance traveled between Providence and New York, between 1906 and 1930. Idle from 1930 until 1934, she was reconditioned for Boston harbor and Boston to Provincetown cruising.

Before Pleasure Liner Romance Met Unromantic Ending

New York's Passengers Forget Crash at Movies

Passengers of the S. S. New York, temporarily forget the horror of the crash at sea as they watched Joe Louis' right crash Jack Sharkey's jaw.

The passengers watched the movies of the recent heavyweight battle at the South Station newsreel theater while railroad officials made up a special train to carry them to New York city.

Mrs. Mary Dunbar of Bronxville, N. Y., watched over her three little daughters as they slept peacefully in the noisy waiting room. The family group, which left Boston at 7:45, Wed., 4½ and Hewn, 3, were returning from a week's vacation at Greenfield, N. H.

Mrs. Dunbar said:

"The children were asleep in our cabin when the crash occurred. I stepped outside to see what had happened and then I returned to the cabin and awakened the children.

"Several persons advised me to keep them in the cabin and they assured me that our ship was all right.

"They had some difficulty getting back to sleep because the alarm bell was located right outside our cabin. They fell asleep soon after the bell stopped ringing."

CHILDREN SLEEP

While Mrs. Dunbar told of her experience, the three children were stretched out on a bench in the waiting room.

Mrs. Nedy Sanders of New York city, the former Neda Masson of Cambridge, was returning to her home from a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Masson of Kirkland street Cambridge.

She was sitting in the lounge when the crash occurred.

"I was reading the newspaper when I felt this awful jolt. It almost knocked me from the chair. The ball in the deck commenced to ring and I read the sign beneath it which instructed the passengers to go on deck.

"There wasn't any excitement among the passengers who were in the lounge at the time of the crash. I went up on the deck and watched the passengers from the Romance come aboard."

James Bennington of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was returning to his home after a business trip, said that he was in the dining room when the crash occurred.

"WE'RE ALL RIGHT"

"It felt as though somebody came up behind me and suddenly gave me a slap on the back. I hurried forward and then looked out the window to see what had happened. The waiters immediately left the dining room and somebody in the dining room yelled, 'We're all right, we're all right.'

"When we left the dining room, we all put our life preservers on and watched the transfer of passengers from the Romance. I thought the crew of the New York handled themselves exceptionally well. They did a splendid job in getting everybody off the boat before it sank."

Shots Fired, Man Seized in Medford

Robert J. Brennan, 28, of San Diego, Cal., was captured at gunpoint in West Medford today after a chase in which six shots were fired by police.

Brennan was taken into custody by Sergeant Michael Brown and Patrolman Thomas Carey of the Medford police, who had been warned over the two-way radio to be on the lookout for a stolen car.

He was booked on a charge of larceny of an automobile, pending arraignment in Malden court.

Police said the taxicab was stolen at an oil company dock in Everett while the operator was in the company office collecting a fare.

City to Ask Million More After Victory Over Dolan

"the mayor or anyone associated with him could place any interpretation he saw fit" on his remarks.

It was while this pot was boiling that Mayor Mansfield suddenly condemned the stories of the proposed new suits.

"In a few days," he said, "I will ask the city council to provide funds to retain special counsel for these investigations."

It was said at City Hall that Attorney Robert G. Dodge, who successfully prosecuted the Dolan action, would be the "special counsel" retained.

"I have been unable, prior to now, to affirm or deny that there would be action in these cases," the mayor continued.

"he concerns the East Boston land takings; the other is connected with the Kenmore square subway extension.

"Now the City of Boston can proceed on these two investigations quietly.

"I have been informed that there is grave doubt that there was liability in the Back Bay case.

"The city will attempt to recover any monies which, in the opinion of the courts, it was deprived of.

DOLAN TO APPEAL

"The investigation of the East Boston land cases will be to determine if there were collusive settlements.

"These settlements involved nearly a million dollars."

Former City Treasurer Dolan, meanwhile, is waiting for the final decree to be entered in which he is ordered to repay the City of Boston $131,161.90. Then he will take an appeal to the Supreme Court.

The finding was based on a suit brought by the city to recover alleged profits in security transactions during the Dolan regime.

"Naturally I am pleased that the position taken by the City of Boston has been vindicated, by Judge Hanify's finding, "Mayor Mansfield said.

"I am also gratified to know that our opinion as to the facts and the law has been sustained by his finding.

"Further than that I have nothing to say. The case is still in court.

"Governor Curley's statement, however, that the finding was perfectly timed is clearly contempt of court.

"It is a plain intimation that Judge Hanify was actuated by political motives, both by the nature of the finding and the time of expiring."

In his decision, Judge Hanify exonerated all defendants except Dolan, but found the latter was engaged in a "fraudulent scheme executed with studied concealment."

Judge Hanify then stated that Dolan was accountable for gains and profits to the amount of $131,161.90, which he "obtained illegally and in breach of his fiduciary duties" and ordered the sum repaid with interest.

Dolan himself was down off Cape Cod in his yacht Maicasay today, but Attorney Thomas H. Mahony, his counsel, issued a statement for Dolan saying that the finding would be fought in Supreme Court.

"Some time within thirty days after the final decree is entered," Mahony said, "we will file our appeal."

George R. Farnum, who, as special counsel for the Finance Commission, originally preferred charges against Dolan, and acted as special counsel for the city in preparing the case, stated he had no doubts concerning the outcome.

"It is vastly more than the mere winning of a lawsuit," he said. "It is a great moral victory for the public"

The city suit against Dolan was the outgrowth of a Finance Commission investigation and was brought before the court several months ago.

The complaint, signed by Mayor Mansfield and Corporation Counsel Foley, alleged Dolan and others have profited illegally to the extent of $250,000 in bond transactions.

During the hearing of the case in a jury-waived session, the complaints against five defendants were dismissed.

Judge Hanify's decree dismissed the complaint the sixth defendant, J. Walter Quinn, and held only Dolan liable.

GRANT GIVEN 2 BLACK EYES

then the lad punched one-two, and there was Grant on the floor—knocked out.

Bennone telephoned police of the Back Bay station and a cruiser car, manned by Patrolmen Lawrence McCarthy and John F. Dolan, who once tagged Governor Curley's car when the governor was mayor, sped to the hotel.

'SLIGHT SCUFFLE'

When they arrived, some of the guests were leaving and all denied there had been a fight, although some admitted the occurrence of a "slight scuffle."

Grant was nowhere in sight, nor was his victorious opponent, and information at the State House today was that the husky radio announcer had been hustled into a private room, and silent and kapoed.

Somewhat to their confusion the visiting policemen learned that they were investigating a banquet to the son of a superior officer in the department. They left, to report that they had found nothing out of order.

Governor Curley and Captain O'Dea, head of the Traffic Division, had been at the bachelor dinner, but both left at 11:30 p. m., following Curley's brief address and an hour and a half before the battle.

Grant was missing from the State House today.

BACHELOR DINNER

Young O'Dea, for whom the bachelor dinner was given, is to marry Miss Rita Frances Curley, daughter of John J. Curley, former city treasurer and brother of Governor Curley.

The nuptials are set for next Saturday morning in St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, with Paul Curley, son of the governor, to be best man and Leo Curley, another son, to head the list of ushers.

It could not be learned today whether or not Grant will attend.

Ipswich Refutes McGlue's Illegal Voters Charge

Charles H. McGlue, Democratic chairman of the state ballot law commission, doesn't know what he's talking about when he says the Ipswich voting list has a lot of names illegally entered as Republicans, Town Clerk Edward S. Cogswell of Ipswich asserted today.

Cogswell was backed up by Frank H. Girard, chairman of the Ipswich board of registrars for 18 years.

Both maintained that the reason there is a discrepancy between the assessors' list and the voting list is because one is compiled on January 1 annually and the other is added to several times after that.

"The 179 persons McGlue mentioned as not being on the assessors' list," they said, "were legally registered after that list was made up on January 1. Their names are on a mid-July voting list.

"Furthermore, there aren't any aliens on our voting lists. None at all."

Bartender Helps Five Off Ship

By DAVID LUBIN

(Bartender Aboard the S.S. Romance)

I had just served a party four 'sinker specials" and was returning behind the bar when the collision occurred.

There were about 32 passengers in the cocktail room at the time and they all began to shout.

The signal bell—ordering all hands on deck and 'report to your station' sounded.

I ordered everyone out of the cocktail room, closed the bar and rushed for A deck, boat 4, my station.

The skipper was on topside giving orders and it seemed as though the New York was still plowing into us.

We took three passengers into the boat, including two elderly women and an aged man.

On the way down we stopped at D deck and took two waitresses aboard and then into the water.

Eddie Nugent, chief deck steward, was in the next boat to be lowered and as he reached for a woman passenger the latter slipped and Nugent grabbed her by the legs and held on until help assisted him in pulling her into the lifeboat.

SAILOR SAVES WOMAN, LOSES SAVINGS

Ben Conroy, of New York, related the heroism of Edward Nugent, of Port Norfolk street, Neponset, a member of the crew of the Romance, who saved an unidentified woman passenger from death and probable drowning.

Nugent suffered a strained back and possible internal injuries from his heroic exploit and is being held at the Haymarket Relief Hospital for observation.

Here's Conroy's story as an eye witness to Nugent's quick thinking:

"I was right at the front rail near the bow of the New York. The ladder had been put across to us from the Romance.

"Suddenly a woman began to whimper as she started across the ladder. We shouted encouragement to her. She began to slip. I saw this Nugent kid took up from the deck below. Suddenly he vaulted the rail to the deck below due to the heavy list of the Romance.

"Just as he landed on the deck the woman slipped and fell. The rail on which the ladder rested gave way. She plunged headlong toward the lower deck. Nugent put out his arm, grabbed her falling body, spun around and they struck the deck an awful crack.

"Both were knocked out temporarily but Nugent finally climbed to his feet, hailed the woman up and led her out of sight.

"I saw him on the New York later. I bought him a drink. He was glad to get it. He told me he had lost $165 he had saved in tips and all his clothing. He felt pretty bad about it."

Orchestra Rushes To Join in Rescue

"The Poet and the Peasant" was the number being played by the S.S. Romance orchestra when word was flashed "all hands go to your station."

ALCAZAR HEROES SPURN RED DEMAND TO SURRENDER

side the shattered walls of the fortress for 21 days. The government promised safe conduct for noncombatants.

As an afterthought, Colonel Moscardo added:

"You can send up a priest in case we need last sacraments."

Major Juan Rojo, staff officer for the government forces hoped for changes of position made today in Alcazar, where approximately 1000 rebels are living to present the ultimatum.

The interview—arranged by telephone between Rebel and government commanders—was broadcast aside the garrison gate of the fortress. Rojo, without arms, approached the gate and the government fighters stopped to see the Rebels.

Once inside, he was seized and a handkerchief tied over his eyes. Then he could not see what damage the Socialist bombardment had done to the fortress walls.

"CALLS ROLL" IN VAIN

Rojo was then led farther inside and allowed to stop. Knowing that many of his former schoolmates were among the Rebels, he called them by name. None answered. Moscardo eventually introduced himself and the parley began.

The talk over, Fascist guards led Rojo back to the gate. Rebel sniper gave the signal, and the message was released.

Once the government officers were out of range, Republican militia began a deadly rain of hand grenades and dynamite into the fortress from nearby positions.

Artillery took up the fire and for three hours the Alcazar was shaken by explosions. Then the bombardment was halted for lunch and a siesta.

Suddenly three Rebel fighting planes appeared over Toledo. The Fascist flyers dropped eight bombs, which killed four persons and injured 30 more.

Screaming women and children rushed for shelter under a small bridge over a dried-up stream. Militiamen returned fire.

BABY ESCAPES BOMB

Frightened residents huddled in doorways to watch firemen search the ruins for victims. The dead included two horse and several women who were crushed to the rubbish of stone and another about two months old lost both his arms and legs.

The searching firemen found a cradle perched perilously on half of a bedroom floor with a year-old baby inside, peacefully sucking a rubber nipple. A bomb had passed by the baby through four floors of the dwelling.

Guns Batter Sebastian; Rebels Refuse Any Truce

Hendaye, France, Sept. 10 (INS)—Guns of two forts outside San Sebastian, ceaselessly pounding at the main rebel force assembling there, today thundered their defiance that a truce was in effect.

Nationalists aimed to save the city from American firebrands and to rescue rebel hostages penned but relentlessly by Emilio Mola, proclaimed Rebel army headquarters his determination to carry the conflict through to a decisive conclusion.

"Spain is in a war of re-conquest to free herself from foreign elements who have got into power," Gen. Mola was quoted as saying.

"In such a war no mediation is possible."

Due to the effective fire of the loyalist forts of Santa Barbara and San Marco, which have swept the sieges of ammunition, rebel infantry said it would likely take four or five days to capture San Sebastian.

Neutrality Fails as Duce, Hitler, Lisbon Refuse

London, Sept. 10 (INS)—While some small powers interested in Spain for anti-trade by armed troops, European neutrality efforts were rendered ineffectual today by refusal of Germany, Italy and Portugal to give any concrete powers to the neutrality commission.

15-Day Armistice Rejected by Rebels

Pamplona, Spain, Sept. 10 (AP)—The newspaper Diario de Navarra today announced Spanish rebel authorities had rejected a proposal for a 15-day armistice in the civil war.

The proposal, the newspaper said, was advanced by a "diplomat of great influence" who declared full acceptance from the rebel government could be obtained.

France Debates Stand in Spain; Strikes Still On

Thirty thousand strikers in the Lille region, next to the factories which they held throughout the night. Other workers extended the "folded arms" refusal to work at Marseille and Clermont-Ferrand.

Red Victory in Spain Perils U. S., Publisher Warns

New York, Sept. 10 (INS)—The rebels in Spain are fighting America's battle against Communism, and if their foul foes will be "serious repercussions" in Latin-America, and in the United States itself, William Griffin, publisher of the New York Enquirer, declared in an interview today.

"Outcome of the civil war in Spain is of the utmost importance to the United States," said Griffin, who has just returned from a three months' tour of Europe, where he conversed with many statesmen and diplomats.

Griffin obtained inside information regarding the underlying causes of the Spanish conflict which led him to the conclusion the war is a part of a Moscow plan for world revolution, with the United States an ultimate theater for its progress.

"There is shocking civil strife in Spain today," said Griffin, "because Moscow, fountain-source of Communism and all it signifies, has so willed it as part of its unrelenting campaign for world revolution.

"Even today Bolshevism is eagerly at work in Latin America, sowing the seeds of hate and disruption in preparation for the day when it can repeat on American soil the horrors it is visiting upon Spain.

"The Spanish insurgents are upholders of the great cause of our common humanity and civilization against the forces of barbarity and chaos."

France is endangered by Communism, Griffin declared, and the present French government—"not neutral"—is aiding the Madrid government, thereby hindering the battle of other nations against Bolshevism.

"France is not neutral. On the contrary she has lent and continues to lend moral and material support of the greatest consequence to the Reds in Spain, and has thus rendered the insurgent cause all the more difficult."

No matter who should win the Spanish war, it will be a long-drawn-out affair, Griffin believes, if the Madrid forces win Communism will immediately concentrate upon the two Americas, with the United States its "greatest prize," Griffin stated.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and wastes out of the blood. Most people pass about a pint a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning often indicate there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Jewish Congress

Ban Communists From Attendance

By SAMUEL GEORGE THORNER
Assistant District Attorney of Suffolk County

One of the greatest undertakings that has marked contemporary Jewish life came to a culmination last month when the first World Jewish Congress convened in Geneva, Switzerland.

The advisability of calling such a conference, which would be representative of world Jewry, was long debated in Jewish circles and, though there was considerable opposition, the Congress met with close to 300 delegates present, claiming to represent 10,000,000 of the 16,000,000 Jews in the world.

It was made quite clear from the outset by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, prime mover of the gathering, that the Congress was not to be a parliamentary or legislative body, lacking, as it did, authority over its constituents. It was, however, to be a consultative body, with the aim of strengthening Jewish consciousness and consolidating Jewish forces for defense against the attacks of anti-Semites, who also were organizing on a world-wide scale.

While an objective appraisal of the actual accomplishments of the Congress is possible only from the perspective of history, there can be no doubt that it was an historic and significant occasion. Jews from thirty-two countries were present, reported on the condition of their people in their respective communities, and listened to the tales of persecution and suffering from those who resided lands where anti-Semitism is rife.

No Red Delegates

There were no delegates from Soviet Russia, where the banning of religion has practically established the Jewish community, nor were German Jews present for obvious reasons. For a short while a pall fell over the Congress when it was believed that diplomatic pressure might prevent the delegates from Poland from reporting on the present plight of the three million Jews of that land, victims of economic pressure and anti-Semitic attacks. Despite possibility of difficulties with the authorities, the delegates boldly rendered their report.

Every Jew who at all followed the sessions of the Congress could not but feel a thrill of pride. Here was a gathering of representatives of a people of peace. This Congress sought no territories to conquer, fostered no race hatred. It served as a meeting for the exchange of opinion, and for the fortification of Jewish spirit in the face of a troubled world, with the same ideals which the prophets breathed in the Old Testament.

The Communists made vain attempts to expose the Congress, a group of Reds had traveled from New York to Geneva on the grounds that as Jews they were entitled to be represented. By an overwhelming and almost unanimous vote this was forbidden to participate, and the World Jewish Congress in no uncertain terms expressed its abhorrence for Communist tactics which are to large measures responsible for the disturbances in Palestine.

Hear of Hunger

It was not a pleasant picture that was presented to the delegates. Delegates from America literally shivered as they listened to the stories of hunger, starvation and persecution that are the lot of millions of Jews. The shadows of intolerance and of retrogressive civilization long heavy over the minds of the auditors as speaker after speaker had taught to report but gloom and misery. It was almost like the bursting of sunlight from behind a dark cloud when the American present told of the efforts being made by Jews in this country to aid their unfortunate brethren abroad. At the World Jewish Congress the United States showed more sincere how far above the rest of the world it stood in civilized life and humanitarian interests.

For Jews the Congress was a revelation of a new unity. For 2000 years without a common homeland, and bound together only by the tenets of a great religion, they had been subjected to indignity and insult. The typical picture of the Jew was that of an old, bearded man, pack on his back, bowed and fleeing from his oppressors.

Flays Reds

heart from the spirit of friendship and fraternity which made no Jew feel that he was alone in the world.

The Congress has been criticized on the grounds that it accomplished nothing. No miracles were expected of it. It was not expected that it would overnight solve the Jewish problem, or convert all Jew haters into friends, or at one time relieve the suffering of millions. It created committees, set up a permanent organization and produced the machinery which will eventually afford the Jew some protection from the menacing forces which preach hatred and prejudice, distasteful to Jew and Gentile alike. It was a beginning, and in this sense laid the foundation for years of work.

Evolved Program

It indulged in no spectacular displays, made no attempt to exaggerate or over-dramatize the Jewish problem. Factually, scientifically, it took up the difficulties facing world Jewry, and with the spokesmen of Jewry present, attempted to evolve a program which at some day have an effect on easing the difficulties of the scattered children of Israel.

Above all, the Congress gave new heart and new hope.

Disillusioned and despondent people gained new optimism from the words of encouragement and the definite plans for aid which were put forward. For 2000 years Jews had been persecuted, had been driven behind ghetto walls, had been subjected to indignity and insult. The typical picture of the Jew was that of an old, bearded man, pack on his back, bowed and fleeing from his oppressors.

Picks 'Joffre' For Name of New School

The person who sent in the ballot failed to sign his or her name.

But the vote was cast in the naming of Roxbury's new school for the late Marshall Joffre, of France, "Hero of the Marne."

A brief note said:

"Why not name our school for a man who led his nation in war because he loved peace; a man who put his country's good above all else; an unselfish patriot and a tireless statesman".

Still pouring in daily on the Boston Evening American's School Ballot Editor, are hundreds of votes for the three names originally proposed for the Eliot square school building: John Eliot, John L. Gleason and William L. Phinney.

Clip and mark the Roxbury School Name Ballot blank, which you'll find on this page of today's Boston Evening American. Then mail or bring your ballot to the School Name Ballot Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

NEW DEAL WINS OVER TALMADGE IN GEORGIA

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 10 (INS)—Rolling up majorities that apparently reached proportions of a landslide, Senator Richard B. Russell and E. D. Rivers today received the Democratic nominations for United States Senator and Governor, respectively, in a State-wide Democratic primary that had been hailed as the first real test of the popularity of President Roosevelt's policies in the South.

Both Senator Russell and Rivers based their campaigns on platforms endorsing the policies of the federal administration. Both were opposed by outspoken critics of the nation's chief executive.

Senator Russell was opposed for renomination by the fiery Governor Eugene Talmadge of "red suspenders" fame, whereas Rivers, who is Speaker of the House, met his chief opposition in Charles Redwine, president of the State Senate, who was sponsored in the gubernatorial race by Governor Talmadge.

THIRD MAN TRAILS

A third man, Judge Blanton Fortson, was in the Governor's race, but he trailed far behind, Redwine failing to get enough votes to throw the contest into a run-off.

The battle line was sharply drawn on the question of the New Deal, and the ratio of votes in the Russell-Talmadge race was approximately the same as the ratio in the Rivers-Redwine affair.

Russell and Rivers maintained a popular vote lead of approximately 3 to 1 over their opponents, on the basis of unofficial tabulations of the complete returns from more than half of the State's 159 counties.

TALMADGE'S TICKET LOSES

However, the popular vote does not nominate a candidate in a Georgia primary. Nomination is based on a county unit system, which is modeled after the national "electoral college."

The trend of the voting in the various counties from which returns had been tabulated indicated Russell and Rivers would receive a majority ratio over Talmadge and Redwine of about 8 or 6 to 1.

Only meager returns from the other State races had been tabulated early today, but the few unofficial tabulations indicated that most, if not all, of Governor Talmadge's candidates had gone down to defeat.

Nation-Wide Poll

Third Party 'Drift' Seen Negligible

By ARCHIBALD M. CROSSLEY

President of Crossley, Inc., and Director of the National Barometer

New York, Sept. 10—Political speculations as to the importance of the third party, which has nominated Congressman William Lemke for President, and of the other minority parties recognized in various States in the coming election, have been somewhat inclined to exaggerate the influence of the "wasted" vote, it is shown by latest figures of the National Barometer, the Crossley Poll.

This finding gains significance by the fact that the Crossley investigators, in every congressional district of the nation, did not begin to canvass the voters until the fourth week of September before Election Day.

Accordingly their findings, gathered exclusively by personal interviews instead of by mail, are calculated to reflect the trend of voter opinion as it exists today.

Generally speaking, the vote in the "minor parties" column runs around 3 per cent of the total vote in the nation.

The lowest are in Vermont, where not a single such preference was recorded in the first week's tabulation. In Maryland, where the "other parties" vote was 2.0 of 1 per cent.

The highest figure was in Wyoming with 8.7 per cent; next comes South Dakota with 7.6 per cent, but this was dwarfed by that state's "undecided" vote of 25 per cent. Other states with above-normal third party leanings—the average minor-party leanings were recorded as follows:

Lowest In Vermont

New Hampshire, 7.5 per cent.
Iowa, 3.9 per cent.
Minnesota, 3.7 per cent.
North Dakota and Kentucky, 3.5 per cent.
Wisconsin, 3.2 per cent.

In New York, where the previous year Communists, Socialists and Communists have polled appreciable numbers, the total vote for all minority parties is pointed the national average, or three per cent.

Illinois and Ohio run slightly higher, with 3.5 and 3.3 per cent respectively. Pennsylvania and New Jersey somewhat lower, with 2.8 and 2.9.

California, home of the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan and the Utopian group, seems to have abandoned its off-standard groups, giving them a total vote of only 2.2 per cent of the total vote.

Minority Drift

In none of the states does the drift to a third party show any real sign of being developed to a likelihood or baseline advantage or affecting it appreciably.

Even the pull for vote up in later weeks it will become possible to answer the much-mooted question whether the third party of Union Democrats could have "failed Townsend more heavily from Roosevelt than from Landon, or the reverse; but in any case by the present early indication, the strength as taken will be negligible.

Indeed, there is a strong likelihood that the total vote for minority parties will be smaller than at the previous presidential elections.

Michigan, where Father Charles E. Coughlin resides, shows so far but 4.5 per cent "other parties" vote. Louisiana, home of the Reverend Gerald K. Smith, will speak with Republican Governor Leche, has the highest minority vote, 5.1 per cent.

The fact that 21.3 per cent of the Michigan's voters, 20.1 of Louisiana's and 26 per cent in Pittsburgh on September 26 voters are undecided by the Crossley investigators to be taken into consideration in this connection, however.

In Michigan this undecided vote could swing the state to either candidate, but in Louisiana it could not change the electoral votes from Landon to Roosevelt on the basis of present standing of the two major candidates there.

The Crossley Poll is being published daily in the Boston Evening American and in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

$1800 Labor Wage Urged By Coughlin

Detroit, Sept. 10 (AP)—To his frequent assertions that the mass production industries must pay labor an "adequate annual wage," the Reverend Charles E. Coughlin added the specific figure of $1800 today.

Labor has the right to organize to obtain such a wage, he said at a Michigan rally of the National Union for Social Justice, and the right to strike for it after other peaceful means have failed.

It also, he said, has the duty of "providing honest work," and of joining unions headed by "American leaders and not foreign lenders."

The priest followed this address with a radio speech, broadcast locally, urging the election of Lemke. H. Ward, National Union candidate for the Senate from Michigan, with which he coupled a denunciation of what he called New Deal efforts to involve the United States in foreign entanglements.

Ward, he said, would prove "another Bob Reed," former Democratic Senator from Missouri) and would fight not for the politicians, but for those who invest upon blood money profits, but for the bleeding hearts of mothers at home and for the many men who were not raised to be cannon fodder."

NAZI LABORERS ROAR SUPPORT FOR HITLER

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 10 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, enthused over the hearty reception by Nazis of his anti-Bolshevik crusade, received smilingly today a solemn labor corps pledge to "follow you wherever you lead."

Fifty thousand tanned, muscular young men marched in review before the German chancellor with brightly-polished spades over their shoulders as the first of a series of Nazi formations began in Zeppelin Meadow.

The Fuehrer, who last night launched a fresh campaign against Bolshevism and Jews, stood on a pedestal on a gigantic grandstand erected at one end of the meadow.

"Good morning, comrades of labor," he greeted the marchers, who were headed by Major-General Konstantin Hierl, Nazi commissioner for compulsory labor service.

"Good morning, Fuehrer," the 50,000 labor corps members responded.

ALL OVER NATION

Throughout the nation similar spade battalions assembled on their drill grounds.

Reports given at Nurnberg were transmitted to them by radio and they replied with maneuvers before the party of high Nazi officials which accompanied Hitler to the review.

Hitler's warning against Soviet influences brought the possibility of international complications as delegates convened for third-day sessions of the annual Nazi Party convention.

Unofficial reports, which could not be confirmed, spread through the party delegations that Moscow might recall its ambassador to Berlin as a result of the scathing attack on the Soviet pronounced by the German chancellor last night.

"Bolshevism seeks to exterminate governments based on a community of race and blood and replace them by non-Aryan Jewish elements of no race," Hitler warned in his address on "Culture."

"Sooner or later Sovietistic authority states will end in anarchy since Jewish elements possess only despotic faculties, never organizing reconstructive ones."

Hitler's assault on Bolshevism and Jews was made during the annual party culture meeting in the Nurnberg Opera House.

BLAME FOR WAR IN SPAIN

"The rock of foundation of the state is an authoritarian will," Hitler shouted to the thousands of Nazis in the audience.

"Unlimited individual liberty leads to anarchy. All states have experienced the destructive effects of democracy."

The chancellor accused Jews of simulating interest in culture solely for monetary gain and asserted:

"The one fundamental truth is that no man can have any realization of cultural achievement if it is not rooted in his own inner self."

He bluntly condemned 98 per cent of the leadership of Soviet Russia as "Jewish parasites" and blamed Spain's civil war on the influence of Spanish Jews.

Soviets Fear New "Surprise" by Hitler

Moscow, Sept. 10 (AP)—Official Soviet sources, declaring "we have no plans so far to recall our ambassador to Berlin," warned Germany in veiled fashion today it must not go too far in anti-Bolshevist policies.

These sources let it be known Moscow was watching the Nazi party convention at Nurnberg closely in the belief Adolf Hitler was preparing to "spring another surprise" on Europe.

Who Keeps Them Out Of Work?

It adds:

"We get nearly twice that amount.

"We will get ten times that amount for future relief if needed."

Perhaps The Mississippi paper is correct and two sets of books are being kept on relief gifts just like the two New Deal budgets.

Senator Harrison

Of Mississippi's 2,000,000 population more than 1,000,000 is Negro.

The Negroes, being the most needy of Mississippi's people, were entitled to most of the $200,000,000 which the News says Roosevelt sent into the state.

Any Negro family in Mississippi which has not received $700 from the New Deal should see Pat Harrison about it.

He is the Mississippi senator who told the industrial states to put their shoulders to the wheel and supply the hundreds of millions which Roosevelt had to have for the 996,000 whites and the 1,009,000 Negroes of Mississippi.

P. S. Negroes do not vote. They have no civil rights in Mississippi. Pat Harrison is up for election and only the whites can vote.

Seattle's Illegal Strike Hit in Boston Labor Paper

The illegal strike directed by Reds against the Post-Intelligencer, Hearst newspaper in Seattle, is a timely warning that organized labor must purge its ranks of Communist agitators, Francis P. Garland, noted Boston attorney, writes in the current issue of The Observer, Boston labor newspaper.

Failure to do so, Garland warns, will mean that organized labor cannot hold the position and advantages it has gained in the United States by methods truly American.

His article, under the heading "Organized Labor Must Take Stand Against Communists and Red Agitators," is as follows:

WON BY SOUND POLICIES

It is time for organized labor to purge its ranks of Communists and Red agitators if it wishes to preserve the position it has gained in America.

This position labor has won in this country by the wisdom and sound policies of American leaders like Gompers and Green. The condition of the workmen of this country has always been better than the condition of workmen in other parts of the world, and labor can continue to improve its condition by pursuing American ways and American methods.

Labor can make no greater mistake than to allow Red leaders to exploit it for political purposes!

While the strike is a lawful and effective method of enforcing the just demands of labor, it frequently becomes dangerous and leads to lawlessness and disorder under the direction of Reds and aliens, who desire nothing better than the overthrow of our American institutions and the destruction of American liberty.

REDS OF SEATTLE

The illegal strike declared by Reds against the Post Intelligencer of Seattle, Washington, well illustrates this point. Under the direction of an alien Red a small number of employees of this newspaper went out on a strike, which has been declared to be illegal by the American Unions of which they are members. Backed by a gang of stevedores and teamsters they have inaugurated a condition of terror and intimidation such as to cause the closing of the paper and the loss of employment by good American Union employes.

When labor demagogues from foreign lands inflame the passions of strikers imbued with alien conceptions of government and economics to such a point as to threaten the overthrow of American institutions, American workmen, along with all good citizens, must take a firm stand for the enforcement and maintenance of law and order.

BOSTON'S AUTO DEATH TOLL REACHES 140

Greater Boston's 1936 total of auto fatalities swelled to 140 today, as death took the wheel in Dedham to snuff out a second life within 12 hours.

The Dedham victim was Richard A. Ball, said, 30, a Boston taxicab man. He died of a fractured skull in Massachusetts General hospital.

AUTOS HAVE KILLED 140 IN GREATER BOSTON THIS YEAR

Just previously in Charlestown, seven-year-old Mary Zanora of Medford street, Charlestown, was killed by a truck operated by Patsy Abruzesi, 32, of Shelby street, East Boston.

Also injured in Dedham today were James W. Littlefield, 28, of Bowdoin street, Providence, and Miss Ruth Aibro, 22, of School street, Danielson, Ct.

Littlefield was taken to Massachusetts General hospital with a fractured arm. His car hit Abizaid's taxicab on the Providence-Boston super-highway.

Miss Aibro suffered cuts and bruises when a car operated by Eugene F. Aubry of Axis street, Providence, hit wreckage left by the first Dedham crash.

Labor Split

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has placed himself at the head of two significant—or ominous—movements.

As the head of the Committee for Industrial Organization—supporting the "industrial union" idea as opposed to "craft unions"—he has defied the Executive Committee of the American Federation of Labor.

As leader of the Labor Non-Partisan League, he is supporting President Roosevelt and the New Deal in the National election campaign.

In a series of illuminating articles, of which this is the second, an outstanding authority on radical movements discusses Mr. Lewis and tells who some of his followers are in both of his new ventures.

By HAROLD LORD VARNEY

THE fact that John L. Lewis and John Brophy are now working side by side in the new organization (Committee for Industrial Organization) is the most convincing intimation that Lewis has gone Left which has yet been revealed.

For only a few years ago, Lewis was scourging Brophy out of the United Mine Workers as an alleged emissary of Soviet Russia.

In 1928, after having been defeated by Lewis for the presidency of the United Mine Workers, Brophy allied himself with Powers Hapgood and a group of Communists in a "Save the Union Committee" whose express object was to drive John L. Lewis out of the leadership of the U. M. W. A.

What Lewis thought of Brophy at that time was caustically expressed in an editorial which he published in his official organ, the UNITED MINE WORKERS JOURNAL, on April 15, 1928.

"It is interesting to note," said the editorial, "that the shameless outfit which calls itself the 'Save the Union Committee,' became extremely busy in its effort to wreck the United Mine Workers shortly after John Brophy returned from Russia, where he spent several weeks as a member of a fake trade union commission. Up to the time that Brophy returned from his trip to Russia, little had been heard of the misfortunes 'save the Union Committee.' But the very minute that he came back, the outfit took on new life. It seemed to have plenty of money from that time on. It should not be difficult to guess where a part of the money came from to finance the campaign of destruction."

THIS first attack was but the curtain-raiser to a series of editorial denunciations of Brophy and his Communist faction which crowded practically every issue of the UNITED MINE WORKERS JOURNAL until finally Brophy was DRIVEN OUT OF THE UNION.

As exhibit exhibit of COMMUNISM was featured in the issue of May 1, 1928.

"For months past," it declared, "the 'Save the Union Committee' under the leadership of John Brophy, Patrick Toohey, Powers Hapgood and a few others has been doing its dirtiest to capture the United Mine Workers and to transform this splendid union into a Communist organization. In carrying out this campaign, the 'Save the Union Committee' has had the full and complete support and assistance of the entire Communist element in America and foreign countries, including Russia."

* * *

IN view of the fact that Mr. Lewis has now placed John Brophy in the highest office in the new C. I. O., it is interesting to note the opinion which he entertained of Brophy trade union ethics, while the latter was a member of the United Mine Workers.

He paid his respect to the Brophy kind of unionism in the UNITED MINE WORKERS JOURNAL of September 15, 1928.

"Leaders of the disloyal bunch who call themselves the 'Save the Union Committee' openly declare that their sole and only purpose is the destruction of the United Mine Workers and the establishment in its place of a Communist organization," the article declared. "It is not difficult to imagine the kind of union they would build up if they were able to destroy the United Mine Workers. It would be one without a spark of honor or honesty. Its word would be worthless. Any contract it might make with coal operators would amount to absolutely nothing, because the leaders would not respect it."

SUCH a characterization is blasting in its definiteness. If John L. Lewis actually believes Brophy to be the perpetrator of such unscrupulous intrigue, then his attention is drawn to C. I. O. as a chief communistic upon a changed plan by Lewis.

To the United Mine Workers convention of 1927, Lewis, in discussing Brophy, cried out to the delegates:

"God save our union from having such leadership."

Now he proposes to set up THE SAME LEADER over his own industrial union movement which, he believes, IS DESTINED TO SUPPLANT THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Another article in this series by Harold Lord Varney will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Byram and Fiancee Stay Hidden Away

Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 10 (INS)—Whereabouts of Harry E. Byram, 72, retired railroad magnate, and his fiancee, Mrs. Frances Evans, 46, New York City divorcee, were unknown here today following their secret flight from Norwalk hospital.

The former president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and Pacific railroad and Mrs. Evans slipped through a side door and sped off in an automobile.

Later, newspapermen were told they were bound for Byram's fifth avenue apartment.

Expectations were the couple would be married in New York. Their plans to wed last Saturday were interrupted when Byram was shot in the head, allegedly by his son-in-law, Donald Hardick, 36, New York broker, now under state police guard in the hospital on a charge of intent to murder.

He is recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Dr. Harry B. Phillips of Westport, termed "remarkable" the rapid recovery of the aged railroad man and said he has an unusually strong physique for his years.

OFFICER VICTIM OF KNIFING

Suffering from arm and shoulder wounds described by doctors as having been caused by a knife, Patrolman Samuel Williston, 43, was taken to City Hospital today from his home in Elwyn road, Dorchester.

His son, Harold, who drove him to the hospital, said an accident occurred.

Dr. Arthur Holland, after treating the wounds, ordered Williston held as a patient. Captain John F. McCarthy of the homicide squad began an investigation.

Williston, who is attached to the Dudley street division, had gone off duty a short time before he was injured.

CLINGS TO HER CELL

Arlington Woman Ignores Mate

Once again today, Mrs. Maybelle B. Hart, 48, of Newland road, Arlington Heights, refused to listen to pleadings of her husband and insisted that she would remain in East Cambridge jail rather than pay a $3 traffic violation fine which she considers unjust.

After making his first call to his wife in the jail, G. Fred Hart, the husband, emerged glum at the end of the hour and announced that she was still adamant.

In a courthouse anteroom before she started for jail Hart had pleaded with her not to go through with her plan but to pay the fine, but she had refused.

"I can't do anything with her," said Hart. "She's making a lot of trouble for herself but you've got to admire her nerve at that. I couldn't persuade her to change her mind and she is very cheerful."

Not even discouraged by such a shudder-inspiring jail breakfast as frankfurters, bread and coffee, Mrs. Hart returned today to work in the jail laundry.

She will be released at 8:30 a. m., Saturday, according to jail officials, unless the fine is paid before that time.

POLICE SEEK MISSING BOYS

Two Waltham youths and one from West Newton were reported missing to police today by their parents.

From West Newton, according to his father, Everett J. Custer, of 56 Northgate park, Albert B. Custer, 16, disappeared yesterday—in dread of going back to Newton high school next Monday.

The boy had declared frequently during the last few days that he "hated" school.

Gone from Waltham are Thomas Gricus, 18, of 105 Newton street, and Joseph Rideout, 18, of 12 McKenn street, believed to have departed together.

Gricus, who has been out of work for some time, left a note saying he was leaving "to make things easier for the family."

12 in Plainfield Flee Burning Home

Plainfield, Sept. 10 (AP)—A barking dog awakened Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roberts and their ten children, ranging from four to 22 years of age, as fire swept their farm home early today.

Roberts and his two eldest sons carried the younger children to safety. Other members of the family escaped uninjured.

The blaze, which originated in an oil, quickly destroyed the house. Damage was estimated at $2000.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

This is me just stopping by Wally Potter's place to say hello to Wally

That's me up there on Maude's back, and Wally laying in the hammock, and our dog Jessie fixing to hop up onto Wally's lap. So far as I know, Wally Potter never took part in the making of any whiskey, but being raised right here with the distillery so close by, naturally he's always had the chance to learn more about how a good whiskey ought to taste than anybody I know. Wally says ever since the Wilken Family started distilling—and that's some 50 years ago—he's never yet come across anything having such a real tastiness to it as The Wilken Family's own personal recipe.

I mean the way it's got of trickling down so cool and pleasant like

Maybe it's the special mildness our Family's Whiskey has got to it that makes it feel so extra lovely on your throat when it's all dry and you're wanting real bad to cool it off. Or like as not it's just so plain good tasting it makes it seem better to you on account of your enjoying it so.

I don't know—but anyhow I can tell from all your orders you're finding The Wilken Family Whiskey just about as much to your liking as Wally Potter up there in the picture I told you about.

Well, I got to say this much. It took our Family quite some time learning all the things that make this recipe like it is. Counting Grandad Wilken and Dad and William and Tom and me, that makes 50 years or so the Wilken Family has been concerning itself with whiskey making. So all in all I guess it's not so odd the way you're all asking for it wherever you find you can get it!

Miss Louise Brimmer Inches Bride of Henry Seton

By BETTY ALDEN

MR. AND MRS. HENDERSON INCHES of Chestnut Hill announce the marriage of Mr. Inches' sister, Miss Louise Brimmer Inches, to Henry Seton, son of Mrs. Alfred Seton and the late Alfred Seton of Tuxedo Park, New York . . .

The wedding took place yesterday at Christ Church, Cambridge, with the Rev. Leslie Glenn, officiating, and the couple later received their friends at a small luncheon given at the Chilton Club by Mr. and Mrs. Henderson Inches . . .

MRS. HEYWOOD FOX

The bride is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Inches of Boston and a sister of Charles Edward Inches of South Hamilton as well as of Henderson Inches . . .

Mr. Seton, who was graduated from Harvard in 1917, is associated with the Agassiz Museum . . . His sisters are Mrs. George C. Sommaripa (Marie Seton) of Tuxedo Park and the Duchesse de Seltre of La Roche, Coyon, Brittany . . . He is a member of the Knickerbocker Club of New York . . .

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Heath of Brookline, who are returning from a summer voyage to Honolulu next Monday, are among the friends of Dr. and Mrs. John Moore McGann who have received invitations to the house party at Sunapee which the McGanns are giving to enliven the early fall season . . . Walter Kilham and the Carl Collinses are some others invited . . .

* * *

Labor Day is the turning point of the social world . . . when everyone lays aside his battered notebook full of summer dates and appointments and buys a new engagement book to record the round of activities of the new season in town . . .

* * *

Likewise, reporters who follow the meanderings of the social whirl, must start with a clean sheet . . . So we are copying off the last few items of our summer notebook before throwing the old pages away and filling our loose leaf cover with fresh pages ready for the formal social season just ahead . . .

Wianno Club Ends Busy Season

MEMBERS OF THE Wianno Club drank a toast to the end of another busy summer at two large parties over the week-end . . . One a costume dance at the clubhouse and the other a musicale patronized by some of society's most prominent music lovers . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Channing Wells of Wianno, gave a large dinner party before the dance, in honor of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Heywood Fox . . . who, incidentally, have given up their New York residence and have settled in Southbridge where Mr. Fox has joined the other members of the Wells family in the well known optical company which they control . . .

Sunday evening at the musicale there were rows of familiar faces . . . Miss Rose Nichols of Mt. Vernon street, attended with Mrs. Leonard Fowle of Commonwealth avenue . . . Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bill, Mr. and Mrs. Channing Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ayling were others in the audience . . .

Mrs. William McMillan has completed her series of contract bridge parties at the Wianno Club for another season . . . her daughter, Louise, is forfeiting all the activities of the Vincent Club and Junior League this winter to join the sorority of other society girls who have found niches for themselves in the business world . . . She is going to live in New York where she has a job with the telephone company . . .

Before leaving their summer homes many Cape Cod families have been urged by Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell, to ransack their closets for discarded clothing and other articles to lend variety to the tables of the annual rummage sale for the benefit of the Osterville Activities . . . The sale is being held today in the old school house in Osterville and Mrs. Hallowell's co-workers on the committee are Mrs. Francis W. Bird, Mrs. Charles Russell and Mrs. R. H. Wilds . . .

Alt-Johnson Ceremony on September 28

IF PRESENT PLANS are carried out the wedding of Miss Deborah Johnson to Dr. Richard E. Alt of Beverly, which is to take place on September 28, will be a small, informal affair in the barn on the estate of the future bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Bethell (Elizabeth Johnson) . . . Mr. and Mrs. Bethell's residence is Old Fields in South Essex . . .

Miss Johnson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Peer Johnson of Beverly, was one of the three girls who circled the globe in the schooner yacht Yankee a year and a half ago . . . and her wedding is to take place only a short while before the Yankee sets sail on another round the world voyage, leaving Gloucester Sunday afternoon, November 1 . . . Natalie Folsom of Hamilton, who is very interested in the thrilling and adventurous trips of the Yankee, may have a chance to sign up for the next trip after all . . . Besides the quarters occupied by Captain and Mrs. Irving Johnson, on the Yankee, there are only two private staterooms and now that the Herbert Talbots of T Wharf, who had a prior claim to those banks, have decided not to go, might make the trip after all . . .

Mrs. Marion P. Prince is giving a luncheon next Wednesday at the summer home of her mother, Mrs. M. S. Burnhome in Newburyport in honor of Theodora Sedgwick and Liberty Dick, two of this season's debutantes . . . Mrs. Prince's daughter, Marjorie, will return to Wimsor school this autumn for her senior year and will be presented next fall . . .

News Notes in Society

Mr. and Mrs. Edward McManus of Watertown were the hostess guests of Dr. and Mrs. Kirk McMahon at their home in Burlington, Vt. Mr. and Mrs. Francis McMahon of Concord entertained Rev. William McDonough as their house guest.

Also joining the ranks of early fall brides is Claire Frances Foley of Everett, whose engagement to Ralph Vezina has been recently announced. The wedding is slated for October 11 in St. Joseph's Church.

Framingham Garden Club Opens Show

THE PRODUCTS of a whole summer's careful digging, weeding and cultivating went on display at the Civic League in Framingham this afternoon.

Members of the Framingham Garden Club entered their prize blooms in the annual flower show and six interesting classes for children exhibitors added a novel feature. Like their parents, the children have been preparing their exhibits for over a month, some making wild flower posters to further the work of conservation, some working floral hooked rug designs in wide shallow trays.

Other classes open to children are: the arrangement of three flowers grown by the exhibitor arranged in an ordinary pint-size milk bottle, a mixed bouquet, a small old fashioned bouquet which will be judged for color arrangement, and an arrangement of mixed vegetables on a tray. Miss Helen M. Joyce is chairman of the children's classes.

Mrs. George Butterworth is general chairman of the flower show, and assisting her are, Mrs. George Scott, who heads the judges' committee, and Mrs. Brenton Hyde, man. Mrs. Winthrop Premont of Framingham Center, who is president of the Framingham Garden Club, is also chairman of one of the classes. This class includes arrangements of leaves in a bottle, open to class chairmen only. Mrs. Charles H. Petit is chairman of the interior decorating class. This will be judged for color harmony in the arrangement of drapes against wall paper with a contrasting flower arrangement.

Miss Nelson Plans Debut

Miss Emily Nelson has chosen edn Wesday, September 23, as the day for her debut party . . .

On that afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nelson will give a tea dance at their home on Dunster road in Chestnut Hill to present to society their daughter, and Miss Elizabeth Hampton Robb, debutant daughter of Mrs. Wilson Robb of Brookline . . . Over four hundred debs and post-debs and their escorts are expected to attend the affair.

A few days after her party, Miss Nelson, who graduated from Beaver Country Day School with honors, will leave for Coligny, near Geneva, Switzerland, where she will attend the Geneva College for Women. After two years of European study she will return to this country and enter Vassear College.

'Substance' Topic of Science Sermon

"Substance" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 13.

The Golden Text is:

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Sometimes Jesus called a disease by name, as when he said to the epileptic boy, 'Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him and enter no more into him.' It is added that the spirit (error) cried and rent him sore and came out of him and he was as one dead—clear evidence the malady was not material."

Rita Frances Curley Weds on Saturday

A DINNER at the Ritz-Carlton was given last evening by Katherine and Helen O'Dea of Jamaica Plain in honor of their future sister-in-law, Rita Frances Curley, whose wedding to John O'Dea is slated for Saturday morning.

Mary Murphy of West Roxbury was hostess at a tea this afternoon at her home in honor of the bride-to-be. Pouring at the affair were Mrs. Stanton White, the former Sally Curley, and Doris Dell of New Jersey, who will be one of the attendants at Saturday's wedding.

Climax of the pre-nuptial festivities is the dinner which Mr. and Mrs. John J. Curley will give at their home Friday evening for the members of the bridal party.

Eileen and Mrs. David Terry will be their sister's honor attendants and six bridesmaids will take part in the procession, Helen and Kathleen O'Dea, Mrs. Stanton White, Doris Dell of Patterson, N. J., Mildred Ryan and Marion Richardson of Newton.

Paul Curley will act as best man and George and Leo Curley will head the list of ushers. Also serving as ushers will be Gerard Sullivan, Phillip Gallagher, Charles Manion, William Cummings, Charles Murphy, Major Joseph Timilty and Stanton White.

After a large reception at the Copley-Plaza, the bridal pair will sail for Bermuda.

Miss Curley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Curley, was graduated from Mt. St. Joseph Academy in Brighton and Kendall Hall in Brighton.

Mr. O'Dea, attended Boston College.

Mary Waters Feted At Newton Party

Several parties have been given the past week for Miss Mary Louise Waters of Centre street, Newton Centre, who sails from New York on Saturday for a year's study in France.

More than 60 relatives and friends showered her with gifts at a surprise farewell party on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. E. J. Barrett, Morton street, Newton Center.

Miss Waters went from the Sacred Heart high school to Radcliffe, and last year attended the Radcliffe-Harvard School of Education, where she was awarded the scholarship on which she goes to France. Her classmates of last year also honored her at a recent dinner.

Active in Sacred Heart parish affairs, Miss Waters has devoted much time to the Agenda Club, the members of which also presented her with a gift. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Waters, will go to New York to see her off.

SMITH Sees Golf SUCCESS

CARNIVAL SURE TO ATTRACT

By WALTER KILEY

Horton Smith who, in his several Greater Boston appearances, won over the golfing public of these parts, sends along his hearty endorsement of the great New England Golf Carnival to be staged at Belmont Country Club on Sunday, September 20.

"It should be a grand success" Horton writes in part. "I am particularly pleased that a worthy charity such as the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund is to get the proceeds.

You may rest assured that I and my associates Lawson Little and Jimmy Thomson, will do all in our power to assure its success."

[illegible] Smith goes on to say [illegible] would be glad to offer [illegible] total half hour of [illegible] and decisions on [illegible] of the committee [illegible]

FRENCH CRISIS

Franc Is AGAIN IN Danger

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The French franc is again foundering in the international money markets and this time its position is considered so desperate there are grave doubts that the English and American stabilization funds can tow it to safety.

Paris itself is said to be the principal source of support in the London market as British authorities fail to evince the willingness to support francs that has been evident on previous occasions.

In our opinion the woe of the franc-Gruyerde at other times is importance since its past state has been largely responsible for world fears. The Blum government has barely accomplished anything even among its capital and foreign loans have exported at a rapid rate. As a result the pact between French Rightists and Leftists has widened. That the franc may be driven lower to force devaluation thus increasing the Blum forces is entirely possible. There are other factors in the case. But with Spanish troubles fresh in mind, it is the danger to the position of the franc that is the most serious factor at present. It is that we feel would really disturb American stock prices.

Trade reviews of conditions in the New England area this week fail to produce revealing findings. Rather they report that business is held to a steady upward course. Textiles have benefited from the holiday of Labor Day in September and the usual preparations for school, according to Dun & Bradstreet. At the same time wholesalers report more than ordinary activity in the call for dry goods and woolens. Footwear is sharp as it typically is before quarter runs along with the information from local distributors that there is an appreciable increase in stock up as much as anticipated of higher prices.

Notebook: Hellman & Lackawanna appears to be ready for its annual meeting tomorrow. With reports around that European topdry moguls prefer to increase production, rather than to raise prices and bring more American producers into the market, Individuals in Anaconda is strengthening . . . The company's foreign mining properties are running on a current basis and a lift in output allowances would be of real aid . . . National Canada may be boosted on the basis of its ability to convert moderate percentage gains in business into much larger percentage gains in profits.

The market is having a rather hard time of it. The favorable news up in domestic news, as a rule, when it does not, when it does not, when foreign influences crop up. Such has largely qualified by stories from French politicians. As a result traders, who so far do not see any good technical reason for a sharp selling movement, are keeping their holdings. Also keep a close watch on the financing and fiscal developments. Any definite slackening of finance will send them scurrying to cover at least part of their holdings. On the other hand, if the picture is the possibility danger may be averted once again and the market will be in line for a rise. Wednesday's trading was of a rent raiser at liability.

STOCKS Push AHEAD

AFTER EARLY PROFIT-TAKING

New York, Sept. 10—A recovery push got under way in today's stock market after the list had stumbled over further profit taking in the first hour or so.

Business and industrial developments on the whole were of a cheering nature although foreign news was not calculated to generate optimism.

With early profit taking being absorbed without much difficulty, traders got behind the stocks, accompanied and a wide assortment of issues moved up. The activity picked up as prices stiffened, and near the fourth hour trading was quite lively.

Bonds steadied and commodities improved.

Foreign currencies were mixed.

Sterling and the Belgian unit were firm, but more modest in U. S. dollars. Reichsmarks, also firm, were unchanged. The French franc, Swiss franc, Italian lira and Dutch guilder were a shade easier.

There was some trouble from Spain's civil war, but the main factors in the foreign exchange situation were the Blum government's efforts to force devaluation thus increasing the Blum forces is entirely possible. There are other factors in the case. But with Spanish troubles fresh in mind, it is the danger to the position of the franc that is the most serious factor at present. It is that we feel would really disturb American stock prices.

New Deal Power Seizure Menaces America

FORMER SENATOR JAMES A. REED of Missouri, who contributed heavily to the election of President Roosevelt four years ago, has given an audience in Portland, Me., his reasons for refusing to support Mr. Roosevelt for re-election.

These reasons encompass his great fear that constitutional rights of American citizens HAVE BEEN IMPAIRED BY MR. ROOSEVELT, and regarding these rights he says:

"The rights we have under the Constitution are the product of centuries of suffering and travail by patriotic men and races of men through the long and bloody march down the centuries of time."

If the full significance of Mr. Reed's attitude is grasped by the people, those of them most favorably disposed toward Mr. Roosevelt must take stock of their opinions.

Senator Reed is an honest man, and an able statesman.

A lifetime devoted to patriotic service entitles him to credit for sincerity.

He is known, and rightly, to millions of American citizens for his unchallenged integrity and sound judgment.

WHEN such a man says the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt would work an injury to his country, the warning is impressed upon the minds of people who have never heeded any other critic of the President.

When such a man as Jim Reed is so thoroughly convinced in his own mind of the harmful effects of the Roosevelt Administration, intelligent citizens must give pause to their disposition, however strong, to ignore the reasons that have impelled him to that conviction.

It is FEAR that has turned Senator Reed from support of Mr. Roosevelt to determined opposition —FEAR FOR THE WELFARE OF HIS COUNTRY.

Mr. Reed feels, in the depths of his soul, that return of the Roosevelt Administration would do irreparable harm to America. He loves America, and fear for the SAFETY of the country he loves is in his heart.

Any consideration less than this would have left him silent.

His faith in Mr. Roosevelt was once so great that he urged his election as President upon his countrymen.

If his difference with Mr. Roosevelt now was only a matter of politics or policy, he would logically hold his peace.

Only the fact that HE BELIEVES AMERICA IS IN DANGER could have made Jim Reed raise his voice against the man who is in the White House today largely because he told the country it would be wise to put him there.

THE foundation of his fear is in words uttered by the President himself.

In a message to Congress in January, Mr. Roosevelt frankly admitted his administration had in 34 months built up new instruments of public power, saying:

"In the hands of political puppets of an economic autocracy, such power would PROVIDE SHACKLES FOR THE LIBERTIES OF THE PEOPLE."

Senator Reed knows such power could never be legally acquired by any man under any American law, and that when it exists IT HAS BEEN USURPED.

He knows further than any President capable of assuming unto himself the power TO PROVIDE SHACKLES FOR THE LIBERTIES OF THE PEOPLE is a menace to his country.

Buy American-Made Goods

THE Rhode Island Textile Association, in an appeal directed to organized labor and the country as well because of the steady importation of low-priced Japanese goods, warns:

"FACE THE FACTS BEFORE IT BECOMES TOO LATE."

These are the facts:

A bleached cotton fabric, duty paid in New York, can be sold by its Japanese manufacturers at a lower figure than the American goods cost to make and market.

It is proof, as the Textile Association claims, of the "determined efforts being made by Japanese textile manufacturers to capture the American market."

Suppose YOU buy this lower-priced Japanese fabric. It means the profit goes to Japanese industry to employ still more Japanese laborers at their low living standard.

It means American industry and labor lose your patronage and, if the tendency is multiplied, jobs here are forfeit.

"Buy American" is a national necessity to offset foreign dumping and to protect American industry and labor.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Sept. 10.—While visitors to the J. P. Morgan mid-town house are carefully selected, once inside the library of Aladdin-like treasures the visitor has the great rat freedom. Nosying, and of, ten one is left entirely alone among million-dollar exhibits.

The tug for a writer in the manuscript collection is perhaps the greatest in the world. To come face to face with the handwriting in Sir Walter Scott's "Lady of the Lake," for instance. He wrote an almost Pisidephine boarding school feminine hand and there is scarcely an alteration.

Browning died tired paper, like that of a schoolboy's copybook. And he too wrote a precise, easily readable hand. The worst scribbling, perhaps, is by Balzac. He must have caused the printers as much if not more trouble than the ben trackings of Horace Greeley.

As might be expected, the handwriting of Marie Antoinette revealed stark poignancy. Some of it was written in gaol after her world collapsed and the guillotine lumbull waited outside. There are even traced blotches that could easily be taken for tears.

Theater patrons are noting the growing resemblance between the late Percy Hammond and his successor, Richard Watts. Watts is already inclining toward the same tired and will probably become like Hammond, heavier, redder and rounder. The only critic with a private income, he is thoroughly Irish, a student of Erse legends. A war dodger, he never served until 1 p. m.

The gossip columnists link him with the single actress, Jean Muir, to whose birthday party he recently flew to the Coast.

Watts is also one of the deadline writers usually making his edition by an eyelash. And like in musing moments to circle Central Park in a horsedrawn herdic.

Many brilliant newspaper and magazine scriveners have been deadlinners. The horror of missing an edition to many obsesses up a force that creates the sprightliest essays—vignettes with a white heat glow.

Edna Ferber often puls off a short story until the final moments and then polishes it out. Frank L. Cobb, editor of the World, liked to dawdle until the composing room began to threaten. O. Henry called it "stewing in his own juice" and often a messenger waited outside the door to dash to the printery page by page.

Peter B. Kyne is a deadliner and Cosmopolitan had to fly a scout to the Coast, corral Kyne and send the final installment by telegraph.

On the other hand, Sinclair Lewis, Zona Gale, Theodore Dreiser and Louis Bromfield take things in leisurely stride, usually far ahead of the deadline.

Johnny Farrar is a refutation of the old saw: "You cannot make a business man out of a poet." Only a few years ago he was strumming his lyre, a delicately pale, blue-eyed dreamer who had come down from the green hills of Vermont to the big city.

Today as one of the heads of a publishing house, he is a ruddy and robust figure in one of the most highly competitive fields in merchandising. If he turns out a sonnet these days it is solely for his own amusement.

A recent word coinage in this column suggesting "spoofronalism" as a synonym for something grand has a runner up. It comes from a minister in Lambert, Miss. and is "slupersolophus," also a synonym for the superlative, soon to be used. This word has the heaviest fan mail in America

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Eve so often you wear out. This is no actual fact. Your body is constantly falling to pieces, using itself up. The body you now inhabit is not the body you inhabited as a baby. That baby body was demolished long since as truly junked as any abandoned flivver. And ten years from now your present body will also be junk—you'll be using a new 1946 model.

Your body wears out. But by feeding yourself you build a new body. And the speed and strength of that new body depends on what you feed it. Any little tyke from the fourth grade knows this . . . knows WHY he must eat his spinach and get his summer tan—what happens if he doesn't.

But there is another condition as natural, as grimly important as this physical fact, which few of us realize. Not only do our bodies wear out, need renewal—

But our minds also wear out. Our thoughts and emotions are constantly falling to pieces. They too must be renewed or they perish.

To most of us, our minds are rather mysterious things. Even the wisest scientists do not know WHAT Thought is, nor WHERE nor WHY it occurs. Small wonder that the average citizen treats his mind as "one of those things"—expects it to function spontaneously.

MUST FEED MIND

But minds do not function spontaneously. Minds are as real as flesh, with as definite needs as flesh. Minds hunger just as flesh hungers. Minds can become malnourished by improper eating, just as bodies can become malnourished. Minds can starve, die from starvation, as bodies starve. Minds can die even while the body lives on.

Every day, many times a day, you see minds doing just this . . . minds falling to pieces, without renewal . . . malnourished, starving minds . . . dying and dead minds.

A starving body is a horrible sight. It is revolting to see half dead flesh.

But a starving mind is an even more horrible sight. A mind that is falling to pieces for lack of proper food . . . developing dangerous sores of stupidity and prejudice which it lacks the vitality to heal . . . becoming bloated with the poisonous gas of conceit and suspicion.

And the most distressing part of this condition is the fact that we do not recognize it when we see it . . . particularly when it exists in ourselves.

We say, "Bill's getting pretty set in his ways" . . . or, "Bessie's getting so stuck up you can't tell her anything." We wonder, vaguely, why the years should so maim people who were once witty, eager and warm . . . and secretly congratulate ourselves because we aren't "getting queer like that."

DYING INTELLECT

We don't realize that we are looking at death . . . at the ghastly processes of slow but sure disintegration. We are looking at minds that are falling to pieces—starving—looking, perhaps, with eyes blinded by our own insurmountable ignorance and egotism.

"But I think!" you protest indignantly. "I read! And these other people—their minds aren't dying. They think and read too. They like to talk. You oughtta hear Bill get started on politics. And Bessie's crazy about cooking recipes!"

But DO you think. How often do you face a challenging idea . . . replace a worn out notion? Do they read. What's the Vitamin Value of their literature? Do either of you really talk? Or do you just absorb and repeat chatter?

How long could a body stay healthy on a diet of cream puffs and pickles? By the same token, a mind as surely dies on a diet of babble and bluff.

Your body wears out. You've built a new body for yourself once, twice, thrice, or oftener, since you were born. HOW OFTEN HAVE YOU BUILT A NEW MIND? HOW LONG SINCE YOU REPLACED THE STANDARDS AND OPINIONS YOU HAD AT 18?

War and the Camera

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

Edwin C. Hill

It was just 30 years ago last month that Bill Warnecke of the Evening World snapped the picture of Gallagher shooting New York's Mayor Gaynor on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse.

It was the answer to a photographer's prayer, but just lucky, as Bill still a cub reporter, says today, with the remarkable personal reputation of the Spanish Civil War to newspaper and newsreel photographers. It is organization, trained personnel, preparedness, mobility, technical wizardry and daring.

If a new American broke today, I'm sure that a photographer's plane would be dogging each flying movement and getting good action shots. Already, filming "battle, murder and sudden death," they have shot all the plagues and disasters of the Anglican litany. When a tycoon star smashes the earth, there will be a newsreel man, somewhere out in space in a rocket plane, grinding the final fade-out.

PHOTOGRAPHERS WELCOME

Correspondents have referred in the events in Spain as "the amateur war." There is little of orthodox military strategy in the fighting, and none of the slow-slogging, mauling tragedy and fate of the World War. There are swift, impromptu forays over a mountainous terrain by soldiers wearing everything from bathing suits to old frock coats as fighting weapons from Toledo blades to the newest and deadliest "tommy" guns.

No war is a good war, but all this makes it a swell photographer's war . . . strictly to the trade secrets. Again, both sides treat photographers and reporters nicely. Recalling the desperate fight the newspapers had to get up to get any peaks out of the World War, the free and easy way to the main arenas in Spain seems amazing. It is, however, understandable. The great preparations of war and politics throughout the world are learning something about propaganda. The late John Reed, whirlwind New York reporter, covering Pancho Villa's march to Mexico City in 1916, got more copy news of a big battle, away with more gaudy trimmings, which made a smashing story—but one which, incidentally, did not cover itself.

VILLA TO THE RESCUE

Reed saw his job goes glimmering looking up to Villa, he hailed Villa and told him his troubles. Villa expressed profound sympathy and regrets.

"It is, indeed, deplorable, señor," he said. "But possibly it is not too late to make amends. If you will be kind enough to describe the events as you have narrated them, we will endeavor to adjust the difficulty."

Reed described the battle which never happened. Villa complimented him on being a great military strategist.

"It is all within the bounds of possibility," he said. "We can carry through the action; but, if you will pardon me, señor, it must be done immediately as, of course, the battle must come quickly to make your article convincing."

Villa ordered mine and dinner for his guest, withdrew with reverent solemnity and put on his battle according to specifications. John Reed not only saved his job but made a big name for himself by his "beat" on an important battle.

Villa was just 20 years ahead of the Spanish miners who have been tossing dynamite at their enemies. He made bombs consisting of a stick of dynamite in a tin can, with a fuse sticking out.

His aim matched singing morale in the ranks. In order to provide for coming darkness, each man sensing a cigarette. At Villa's command, each man lighted the bomb fuse with his cigarette and hurled the tin can, like a boy lighting and tossing a cannon cracker. He blasted his way to Mexico City. These footnotes may indicate merely futile attempts to be funny, as the cinema noted a few days ago, have a bearing on the fact that some time soon we are turning to the "open game."

A "LITTLE PRACTICE"

In this connection, a friend of mine, out of the incident of his visit to Madrid a few years ago thinking of a crowded street car, and a bomb setting at random, heard a terrific explosion.

"What's that?" he asked a Spaniard standing by.

"Oh, nada-nada, señor," said the Spaniard. "That was just a little practice bomb." They had blown the front out of an office building."

Honest and interpreting reporting and photographing carefully done, as the motivation of war are good. Its horrors can't stand up under sanity. In the meantime, a few less in the battle-dampening lists in the barricades for reasons of small export to get them out of the problem. Navy and hold down the prison population.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Soviet Russia warns Japan that the situation on the Manchurian frontier is becoming intolerable. Japan protests against anti-Japanese acts in China. Radicals in Fiske are trying to organize a general strike to force their country to aid the Communist government in Spain. This is a fine time for the United States to attend strictly to its own business.

A Spanish Communist deputy, speaking to a mass meeting in Paris to "give us air planes, machine guns and cannon," said "France should help Spain fight the Fascists because if they get in our country it will be your turn tomorrow." This is a rehash of the argument which was used to drag us in to the World War. We were told that if Germany triumphed over the Allies she then would cross the Atlantic to conquer the United States. Soon we will be getting warnings from Europe that we must take a hand in European affairs to prevent the spread of Fascism to our country.

Don't let anybody convince you that the United States cannot keep out of the next war which breaks out in Europe. If we will make ourselves so strong that nobody dares attack us, we can keep out of any war. We can keep out of a European war anyhow, if we make up our mind to stay out. Holland kept out of the World War. So did Switzerland, and Sweden and Norway and Denmark. We don't have to be too proud to fight. We should have enough sense not to get into a row which is no concern of ours.

First returns in the Literary Digest presidential poll shows Landon running better than two to one ahead of Roosevelt in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maine. The initial tabulation gives Landon 15,056, Roosevelt 7645 and Lemke 754. But the most important thing about it is the way voters have switched. Of those now favoring Landon, 2714 voted Democratic four years ago. Only 1407 of those for Roosevelt voted for Hoover in 1932. And 521 of the votes for Lemke were Democratic four years ago.

President Roosevelt's claim, in his Springfield, Ill., speech, that the credit of the United States is "on a sounder basis than ever before in all history" is amazing. It would be interesting and enlightening to have him or his financial experts try to explain why and how the most stupendous national debt in history has improved the country's credit. The ease with which the government borrows millions is due to the fact that it has the banks under its thumb and they have to extend whatever credit the government asks.

According to the September Federal Reserve bulletin, the Federal Reserve banks, during the first half of this year, failed to earn their dividend payments. That is because they are so loaded up with government securities at such low interest rates. Unless the 12 Federal Reserve banks can make up their earnings deficit in the last half of the year, this will be the first year since 1924 that they have failed to earn their six per cent dividends.

Walter Meyer, 22-year-old paroled convict, is reported by Chicago police to have confessed the murder of a suburban policeman. The officer caught Meyer staging a holdup and was shot through the heart, police charge. The number of murders and other crimes committed by paroled criminals shows there is something rotten with the administration of our parole system.

Director J. Edgar Hoover of the "G" Men has said "The parole theory is beautiful; the practice approaches a national scandal." And he has charged that "prison sentences are not sentences but problems in division and substraction." The parole system specializes in mass liberations, mass them merely problems of substraction for convicts are released for no reason at all except to get them out of the prisons. Navy and hold down the prison population.
